

IN THE FOOTBALL WORLD

FEW GAMES ARE ON THE SCHEDULE FOR TO-DAY.

The Most Interesting Match Is Between Princeton and Villanova. Carlisle Indians, as usual, Are Gathering Points Early Scores to Date Team Practice

The football menu for to-day is limited to half a dozen games. Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania will get into action, but Cornell and Columbia will not meet in their matches, and there will be no more for the others after today. Harvard is now directing his immediate energies to getting ready for Williams next Saturday. Williams being well in good respect at Cambridge.

The most interesting game booked for to-day is the one at Princeton, where Villanova will try to take a fall out of the Iagres. Villanova hasn't succeeded in taking any falls out of the carnivorous crowd, but she has made said crowd scratchy to win more than once. Villanova is the only team only 6 to 6 in the Indians and therefore expects to make Nasco step lively this afternoon. The schedule follows:

Yale vs. Tufts 9-0 New Haven
Princeton vs. Villanova at Princeton
Pennsylvania vs. Franklin and Marshall at Philadelphia

Brown vs. Rhode Island State at Providence

Colgate vs. Alfred at Hamilton

As regularly as the football seasons roll around the Carlisle Indians start in to roll up the biggest collection of points, which lead them maintain for the greater part of the season at least. It's the same story this season. The Indians have played three games and already are within two points of a hundred. Among the colleges Cornell has the biggest margin with 10, and a bigger margin of points than any other team, even Harvard. Harvard comes next, Cornell Yale and Pennsylvania already have fallen into the scored on division, though Yale, unlike Pennsylvania, has not had too good a record. The Indians staged here are vastly more of the strong teams that haven't been scored on than have.

The scoring under the new rules has been considerably increased.

Take the total points made by Harvard, Yale, Minnesota, Exeter, Andover, Carlisle, Pennsylvania, Lafayette, Williams, West Point, Cornell, Penn, Stanford, Amherst, Lehigh, Navy, Brown, Georgetown, Dartmouth, Swarthmore, Vanderbilt, Princeton, Yale, Columbia, Cornell, etc.

The computation is not confined to teams that have made big scores with a view to swelling the total. Dartmouth, with only six wins, is the only team in New England, incidentally, is the only eleven among the ones enumerated that hasn't made at least two touchdowns in some game.

Total scores of teams that have played two or more games are as follows:

Harvard 17-0 two games; Yale 18-2 two games; Pennsylvania 8-0 three games; Lafayette 11-0 two games; Cornell 10-0 two games; Princeton 10-0 two games; Amherst 17-0 two games; Wesleyan 30-22 two games.

The judge is the busiest man on the gridiron this season except the ends. The ends are prodded into action, so to race up and down the line, and before every scrum and mark a spot to see that the forward pass doesn't go more than a yard. The ball is held in place, and before the ball is put in play, Davis Fultz has nearly run his legs off, but his training serves him in good stead and his work is done.

The scheme of marking the limit of the forward pass of tying a stone in his handkerchief and holding it on the ground at the required marks, on a variation of hand-to-hand, incidentally, is the only eleven among the ones enumerated that hasn't made at least two touchdowns in some game.

Total scores of teams that have played two or more games are as follows:

Harvard 17-0 two games; Yale 18-2 two games; Pennsylvania 8-0 three games; Lafayette 11-0 two games; Cornell 10-0 two games; Princeton 10-0 two games; Amherst 17-0 two games; Wesleyan 30-22 two games.

The judge is the busiest man on the gridiron this season except the ends. The ends are prodded into action, so to race up and down the line, and before every scrum and mark a spot to see that the forward pass doesn't go more than a yard. The ball is held in place, and before the ball is put in play, Davis Fultz has nearly run his legs off, but his training serves him in good stead and his work is done.

The scheme of marking the limit of the forward pass of tying a stone in his handkerchief and holding it on the ground at the required marks, on a variation of hand-to-hand, incidentally, is the only eleven among the ones enumerated that hasn't made at least two touchdowns in some game.

The tackle has been pretty good to date in spite of the prohibited driving tackle. Keeping one foot on the ground is a safe practice, and many hard and sure tackles. In the last game there was a tendency to tackle high, getting the ball from the hands of the opponent with one foot on terra firma and lower tackling was seen. As a matter of fact, the players are trying to play under the old rules than as they were originally set up. High tackling with one foot on the ground is very likely to prove inefficient, not allowing the tackler to bring the ball down, and arms slipping down and away from the person of the man tackled. The players seem to be adapting themselves to the new condition rather well.

NEW HAVEN Oct. 4.—The first secret practice of the Yale football squad for the year was held today. The practice was to that secret practice has ever been held at Yale. The practice was to the best of our knowledge, the second day upon the arrival of the coaches. The practice was also dependent upon a new lineup for tomorrow's game, and Capt. Daly will not know unless he is told. The new lineup for tomorrow's game for to-morrow will be: Guards, left end, Francis; left tackle, Loring; left guard, right end, Foster; right guard, right tackle, Steely; right end, Phillips; left halfback, Green; right halfback, Domini, fullback.

The coach who was in charge of the practice was so good that he has won himself a place on the team, for the present at least. George Atter handled the quarters, and Capt. Daly will not know unless he is told. The new lineup for tomorrow's game for to-morrow will be: Guards, left end, Francis; left tackle, Loring; left guard, right end, Phillips; right guard, right end, Foster; right end, Foster; right tackle, Steely; right end, Phillips; left halfback, Green; right halfback, Domini, fullback.

The New York University varsity eleven had a meeting in overhauling the High Field in a practice game in which no score was allowed. The offensive work of the team, or lack of it, was good, concerning the fact that a real practice game has been played this season. Both Yale and Murphy at the time of the practice game had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 4.—Several important changes were made in the lineup of Naval Academy football team this afternoon and the team is now in better shape. The backs in both the line and backfield that had been seen here for years is now going on. Murphy, who has played a strong game at the helm, has been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted to learn that they saw James H. Herring, captain of the Penn team, at the University of Pennsylvania yesterday. Herring, who was weak in practice, had been beaten at least half most of the afternoon, and Brown, the big fourth class man was at the helm. The work of Sewell was very good, and the work of the other backs was good. The work included twenty minutes of the hardest kind of a contest, followed by a short rest. The second team and Johnson took his place. Dingle, last year's guard, signified his intention to report to the coaches to-morrow. Menard, a member of the team, joined the squad to-day as a candidate for end.

NEW YORK Oct. 4.—The University of Pennsylvania football coaches were delighted